

E. G. Hamby has been bringing wagon loads of excellent melons to town the past ten days. Mr. Hamby is recognized as one of the best watermelon raisers in the county. J. L. Anderson and Harry Martin both stand in the front rank in that line. Until recently J. L. Anderson probably was a little in the lead for size, but for the past few years he has not given so much attention to that line of farm products. Mr. Martin, however, grows them in quantity and of excellent quality, many of which he puts on the local market.

J. B. Angel arrived from Chattanooga Saturday for a brief visit with his wife and children, who have been here a few weeks visiting her mother, Mrs. J. R. Davis, east of town. It will be remembered that Mr. Angel was marshal of Crossville some 10 years ago and made a very creditable officer. He is now one of the plain clothes squad of the Chattanooga police force and is off now on his annual vacation. He left Monday for points in White county to visit with relatives and friends before returning to his duties.

Miss Antoinette Jackson was here from Harriman for Labor day.

C. E. Brookhart was up from Peavine Saturday. He was accompanied home for the week-end by Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Brookhart and little son, Donald.

Plenty of Waterman fountain pen ink at the Chronicle office.

J. R. Davis was in from his home near Dorton Saturday and brought us two of as fine tomatoes as we have seen this year. They were of what is known as the Beef Steak variety. The larger one weighed two pounds and measured 15 3/4 inches around. He says he recently had three in one cluster and that the cluster weighed four pounds and two ounces. He has grown one this year that weighed two pounds and measured 19 inches around. The Beef Steak variety is one of the very best grown for eating as it has very few seeds, is very meaty and attains a size about the same as the Ponderosa, but more circular in form.

Mrs. J. D. Brady was up from Grassy Cove Saturday shopping. She informed us that Mrs. W. E. Waddell, of the Tennessee Children's Home, brought to them a nine-year-old girl whom she and husband have decided to adopt. This makes the third child these splendid people have adopted, they have no children of their own. The oldest girl they have adopted was in school at Hot Springs, N. C., last year and has been entered again for this year. Thus far Mr. and Mrs. Brady have adopted three children and are giving them all a splendid educational advantages. There are few things in life that are finer or more praiseworthy than the work Mr. and Mrs. Brady are doing in giving to children who are left orphans the love and advantages of a good, Christian home with all the splendid things that it implies in the way of educational advantages, clean home environment and opportunity in life.
